CHOIR

Mr. Jack Hill directs the choir, which is made up of 50 members. The accompanists are Lynne Fitch and Kelly Kandle. Besides their Christmas and Spring concerts, they planned many other activities. On November 15 they went to New York, where they saw a Broadway Show. These activities were made possible by the efforts of the choir officers.

There was one person in the choir that won a special award. He is Ken Good. He made All State Choir for 1980 and sang at Atlantic City, not only with the Ensemble but with the All State Choir.

The choir members would like to thank Mr. Hill for everything that he's done.

THOMAS RIORDAN

"I feel better now than when I began teaching in 1960," said Thomas Riordan, Clearview's new Superintendent. His quote was delivered with a warm smile and a cheerful tone. Even since his recent promotion, Mr. Riordan said that he misses the daily contact with the students which he used to have when he was principal. Even though he regretfully leaves personal contract with the students, who have kept him young all of these years, he is proud to be promoted to Superintendent of Clearview Regional High School.

Thomas Riordan was born in Glen Yon, Pennsylvania. He attended Newport High School where he graduated in 1941.

From 1942 to 1946 he served in the United States Army. He then attended Pennsylvania Military College, now Widner University, in Chester, Pennsylvania, where he played football for three seasons. In 1950, he graduated majoring in business and economics and minoring in education.

Since Tom Riordan's parents died when they were very young, he was given the difficult responsibility of paying for all school and personal costs himself.

His jobs included working in the Pennsylvania coal mines to being a short order cook.

"I often worked until three in the morning and had to go to an eight o'clock class the next day," he said with a quick smile.

In 1950 he taught fifth graders for one and a half years. He then worked for a private business in 1952 before he began teaching at Clearview in 1960 when the school first opened. After teaching seventh grade math and science at Clearview, he became athletic director, vice principal, then principal.

During Mr. Riordan's senior year in college, he married his wife, Rita, and later the couple had three children, Sharon 31; Michael, 26; and Patrick, 21. The Riordan's now live in Bridgeton.

Coach James Cargill

But Coach ... We have to get in shape to play the hockey team!

Two dedicated runners (?)

The Clearview Cross Country team has much to be proud of due to their many accomplishments this season. Their record of 13-4 was the most successful in Clearview's Cross Country history. Early in the season Coach Cargill could tell that the team would be a top conference contender, not by the efforts of just one runner, but by the talent and determination of the entire team. Each meet held a surprise ending as a different runner led the scoring for Clearview. They ran as a team, not as individuals, and this paid off for them at the Gloucester County Championship meet held at Clearview. With no runners from Clearview taking first place, the team was still awarded the 1980 Gloucester County Cross Country Championship title because five Clearview runners took top places. This team effort pulled them through many crucial meets with other strong teams in the Olympic Conference. The seniors, Rob Mogar, David Grear, and Dan Rios, held the team together to keep this unity throughout the season. Even though there were many individual honors awarded this year, the whole team deserves a lot of credit for their participation in a great season.

It was the season of surprises and disappointments for the girl's field hockey team of 1980. The girl's began the season winning their first six games, assuring their rivals that they would be a tough team to beat. The girls lost four close games to the top teams in the Conference. In the tournament the girls, remembering the upsets of past years, were determined not to "choke" again. Shutting out the first three tourney opponents, and scoring a total of nine goals, it looked as if Clearview would finally be bringing home a Group II Championship. But their dreams were shattered by a talented Haddonfield squad that took the Group II title for the sixth straight year. With much to be proud of, the girls ended their season with a 13-5-1 record. Many accomplishments were made by the eleven seniors on the team. The offense, scoring a total of 45 goals was led by Nancy Bauer with 10, Donna Coyle with 8 and Kathie Friedrich with 19 (50 in 3 year varsity career). The defense, allowing only 14 goals, was led by Michele Wargo, Debbie Madara, Terry Scott and goalie, Sandy Eachus, who recorded 11 shutouts (19 in 2 year varsity career).

Soccer statisticians — piece of cake.

Finishing the season with the best soccer record in Clearview's history, the 1980 soccer squad surprised a lot of the tough conference competitors. First year coach, Chris Adamkiewicz, was pleased that he decided to start some of the talented freshman and sophomore members because they definitely were an asset to the team's depth. This made the veterans strive harder to gain a varsity position. Senior co-captains, Mike Westog and Frank Kingett both were selected to the All-Conference, Second Team. They were instrumental in holding down such top-notch Conference contenders as Glassboro, Eastern and Highland. Their record of 5-10-2 shows nothing of the skill displayed on the field. The team lost several grueling games by just a one goal margin. Leading scorer, John Mulbaier had fourteen goals and led the young offense. The outlook for future teams is extremely optimistic as interest in soccer grows every year.

The 1980 Girl's Tennis team, with only two returning varsity letter winners, ended their season with a 5-8 record. This is quite an accomplishment as the girls have not had as good a season in several years. Because of the many talented new members on the team, the tennis record should continue to improve in the years to come. Three of the girls were selected to participate in the Olympic Conference Tournaments this year. Theresa Gillice played first singles and the team of Hope Mohrman and Janet Thistle played first doubles. Clearview was well represented at this high honor.

Relying on young and experienced players, the Clearview football team of 1980 was faced with many disappointments. Having trouble getting on the scoreboard at the beginning of the season, the offense, led by quarterback Gene Reid, senior George Mason and juniors Bill Crawford and Jim Bodine, exhibited much improvement in the latter games of the season. The defense held their own against many of the powerhouse teams in the Conference this year. Lineman, Jeff Kuss, with his key tackles on the endline and Tom Contarino, with his numerous sacks, sparked the determined defensive squad. Junior James Newbill, injured in a preseason game, came back to aid the team on both offense and defense. Because of the large number of returning underclassmen next season, the team should be back in the running again to better their 0-9 record. It was a tough season to endure, but the courageous players with their deep respect for Coach Pidcock, stuck together until the very last game.

The football cheerleading squad experienced some changes in the 1980-81 season as Mrs. Dresh, the person behind the scenes who made the many spirit-raising events such a success, returned as coach, and the Jayvee squad was eliminated. The elimination of the Jayvee squad created a larger varsity squad that kept the cheering alive at both Varsity and Jayvee games. They livened Clearview's school spirit with such activities as lockerroom decoration, pep rallies, and spirit week.

Mrs. Sweeten returned as coach for basketball cheerleading for her second year. She organized the Varsity and Jayvee basketball cheerleaders to spread their spirit to the team and the school by secret pals and pep rallies. They cheered for Mrs. Sweeten's well-known bloodmobile and served the school and the team in whatever way they could.

Many times wrestling is considered an individual sport and not a team sport. That is the way Clearview's 1980-81 wrestling team should be looked at this season. Even though the overall record doesn't indicate it, there were many individuals that took high honors during the season. Senior, Frank Kingett finished the season with a remarkable 17-0-1 personal record Paul Hurff and Mike Westog also had reputable records. Clearview placed second overall out of the nine schools at the Christmas Tournament held at Glassboro High School. Frank Kingett, Paul Hurff and Mike Westog placed first in their weight classes. Scott Seabrook and Victor Glass took seconds while Sandford Soucek placed third at this tournament. Clearview's reputation in wrestling is becoming more prestigious every year due to the growing interest of the younger wrestlers coming up from the Junior Wrestling programs. But Coach Hans Van Brill and Coach Mike Bradley will have a lot of rebuilding to do for next year because many Varsity members will be lost to graduation.

Teamwork was the key to this year's girls' basketball team. The girls had to learn to work together as a team due to the loss of some key players from last season. The girls also had to adapt to the new techniques of first year coach Don Bills. The scoring this season was lead by co-captain Kim Clendining, who averaged over 16 points per game. The record this season didn't show a true picture of the girls' talent and determination. They came very close to many top notch conference powers such as West Deptford and Glassboro, (after beating Glassboro once). Because of the many experienced players coming up, the coaches are optimistic for next year's season.

The 1980 boys' basketball team was led by the many seniors on the team. Second year coach, Karl Neiswender, and first year coach, Joe Stetson, shared the coaching responsibilities of both Varsity and Jayvee teams. The leading scorer, Kevin Raisner, averaged over 17 points per game. The other seniors, along with junior co-captain Gene Reid and sophomore, Dave Cade, also contributed to the scoring. The overall record didn't turn out as well as expected but the team gave the fans many exciting moments with games in overtime and with extremely close scores. The coaches look forward to another exciting season next year and hope to improve on their record.

Is There Life After Practice?

September 1 is the day all fall athletes either dread or look forward to. It is the beginning of practice for every day of every school week up to the end of October or into November. It means no more double-hot-fudge-nutty-nutty sundaes and no more afternoon General Hospital. Instead, that delightful date of September 1st means an afternoon of timed mile runs, suicides, calisthenics, drills, and tons of sweat. And remember, no matter how bright the sun shines, you are an athlete (so the coaches say), and you are tough, strong, mighty, vigorous, and robust. So get out there and run! Yes, as of September 1st you are an official Clearview athlete. Now, I'll let you decide if there is life after practice.

It Sure Beats Walking

What do you do if you're not old enough to drive to school, you live too far to walk, and you don't want to ride the bus? The answer is — get a moped. Moped popularity has grown and is still growing with the rising cost of gasoline. A moped can get 150 MILES to the gallon. These two-wheeled motor bikes are not only economical, but also safe and above all, they're a lot of fun.

So the next time you are stuck for a ride, think about getting a moped. After all, it sure beats walking!

Hey Mom, I Missed the Bus

I don't know if missing the bus is the reason for all the cars in the parking lot this year, but there sure are a lot out there. For every personality type, there is a car to match. A sporty person can have his pick of a Trans-Am, Camaro, or Mustang. The more sophisticated can have a Thunderbird. The rustic person can choose either a Ford or Chevy truck or a Bronco. The plain person can take a volkswagon or stationwagon. And of course there are the hot rods for the wild and crazy people. I guess you could say that Clearview consists of all kinds of people because it sure has all kinds of cars.

THE WAY IT WAS 80-81

Oo-La-La

Bottoms have frequently been flashed wearing fashionable, tight-fitting designer jeans. Such sights have taken the media by storm. Close-ups of derriers are shown in magazines and TV commercials.

Designer jeans show taste, style, class, and chicness. Ralph Lauren, Clavin Klein, Sasson, Bonjour and Gloria Vanderbilt would be proud to see their works of art on Clearview's sexy students. So Oo-La-La.

Clearview — show us your shapely jeans!

Clearview's "5 & 10"

The School Store has three objectives: (1) to provide an on-site source of school supplies for the students, (2) to promote School spirit by selling merchandise with the Clearview imprint and (3) to provide a training station for the D.E. I students.

To accomplish the first two objectives, the School Store sells a variety of merchandise in four categories: Stationery, Novelty, Candy, and Clothing. The third objective is accomplished by the students in the D.E. I classes. Here, the students get a variety of work experiences that will prepare them for their Co-op jobs in their Senior year.

Give Them A Standing Ovation

Clearview's 1980 Marching Unit was a new and exciting one. It started off with a new look for the entire band and band front. Many sales were conducted last year to buy new uniforms and equipment, but before anyone could think of what they would look like in their new attire — many long, tiresome practices had to get rolling. When the first cavalcade finally came up, Clearview (with its new look) proudly took home a third place finish.

A week later, Clearview hosted its Seventh Annual Cavalcade. Everything was set, the bands were ready to go, and suddenly, the rain came and wouldn't stop! To the amazement of many, Clearview went out and did their show. The cavalcade was then postponed and Hammonton wound up taking home top honors.

As the season was nearing an end, all band members were hoping to go to Allentown. Clearview scored fourth place in Chapter I Championships at Eastern and found that they were on their way to Allentown, Pennsylvania. For everyone this seemed to be the highlight of the year. Clearview went up against bands from all over and took home an eighth place finish to end the season.

The band alone cannot be credited with the success they've had, much of it has to go to the instructors: Mr. Webster, the drill designer, Dr. Culbert, Mr. Newton, and Miss Gould.

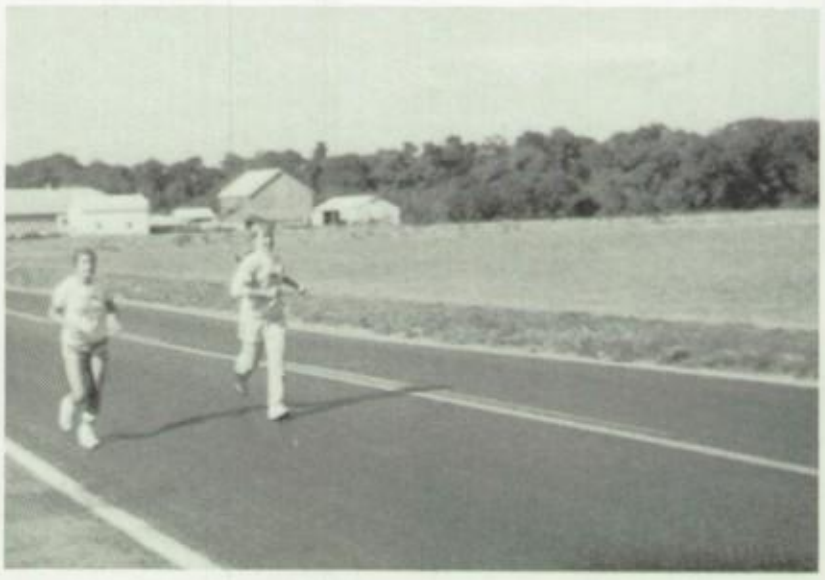
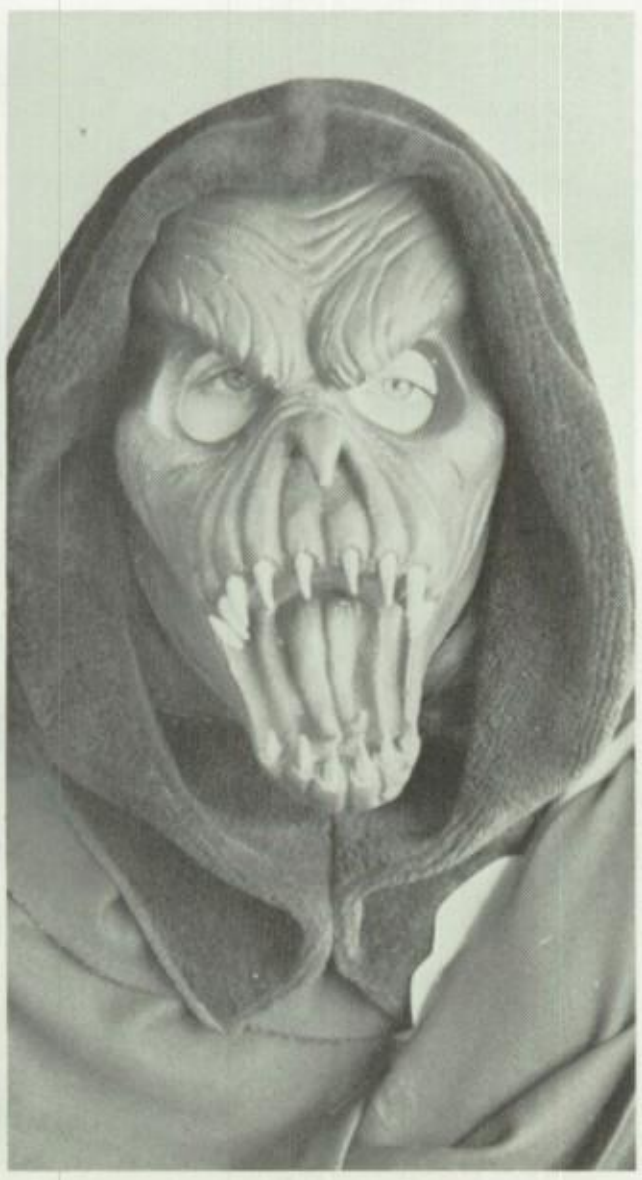
They Won!

You dare to ask who THEY are. You mean you don't know who THEY are. Well, THEY are the reason for millions of t-shirts, sweatshirts, hats, gloves, and banners. THEY caused a parade in Philadelphia for thousands of crazy, very happy people. THEY were the cause for hugs and kisses and tears. THEY even had their own song! If you still don't know who THEY are, they you must not be from this country, because THEY are our wonderful Phillies!

Keep On Runnin'

In early October the sophomore class sponsored a 5-mile run on Breakneck Hills. The start and finish were both in Clearview's parking lot. The middle was spent running up and down, hill after hill. For all survivors, there was an awards ceremony after the run. The first three people in each of several categories received an engraved placque. You see, all that huffing and puffing does pay off!





Guess Who?

The Student Council sponsored their annual dress-up day in conjunction with Halloween. Goblins, witches, animals, birdmen, and baseballs paraded around the school for a day to get into the Halloween spirit. The question of the day was to guess who was who in their costumes. To end the day, there was a pep rally where a prize was given to the scariest, funniest, and most original costumes. Yes, wearing a costume definitely adds zest to the school day!

THE WAY IT WAS 80-81

Carol's Kids

Seniors are offered a Relationships class every year taught by Mrs. Dresh. The class deals with the family, friends, and finding out about yourself.

As a part of child development, Seniors visited area nursery schools including: Glassboro State Nursery School, and Rocking Horse Ranch. Here they learned how to deal with children. They even learned who their favorite Seasme Street characters are.

Next, the classes visited Vineland State School as a part of their mental retardation course. Word spread quickly that "boys have arrived!!" and the girls were excited while showing us their classrooms and the crafts they had made.

The classes also visited Ancora and learned that mental illness can be dealt with through much patience and understanding. Juniors — schedule Relationships and start inter-relating!

It's A Ringer!

One of the special times in high school is getting your high school ring. Distributed by Balfour, rings are available to every junior or senior in a variety of types and stone colors. The traditional Clearview ring of gold metal and green stone has been joined by silver bands and stones from aquamarine to black onyx.

Designs on the side of rings vary from sports to band to club activities. The pioneer is noted on one side, the other is up to the individual student.

During the day of their arrival, hands are thurst forward as rings are turned until that "special someone" locks it. If you lose count, you must start all over again.

Rings stop being turned when you reach your graduation year. Ending on that year, the ring promises to bring good luck — and who doesn't need that?

Hut One! Hut Two! Hut Three!

November 25 marked the first ever Powder Puff football game between the Senior and Junior girls at Clearview.

The biggest factor of the game was not the special plays or the skill on either side, but the cold, biting wind.

The girls tried to keep their hands on the football, but all hands were numb. What really kept everyone warm was the zest of the cheerleaders in their long-johns, ribbons and makeup. You couldn't help but laugh.

Though there was no score for the game, the cheerleaders scored a 10!

That's Entertainment!

Clearview students were entertained one afternoon by the Army Band who appeared to show off their talent.

Although it wasn't the usual hard rock that Clearview enjoys, the band provided a much needed break during a hectic day.

Last year the Navy Band visited and Clearview noted the talents that each of the two bands have.

We welcome any entertainment that helps make an eight-period day shorter.

Two Bits ... Four Bits ...

Visiting Clearview during a Friday afternoon pep rally might prove hazardous to your life. No, they're not crazed aniamls, they're students who feel that some things are worth cheering about.

Clearview had several pep rallies this year with students doing many strange things. One afternoon we had frogs and a birdman walking around while others worked feverishly lining pennies on the floor.

The Cheerleaders led us through many cheers and many sports. C'mon Clearview — give a little yell!

A Winner in Her Own Way

In late September Joan Tracy and Linda Wright, representatives from the Deptford Jaycettes, came to Clearview to choose Clearview's Junior Miss. She was Kelly Kandle. On October 5th, Kelly went to her first Jr. Miss Meeting. Every week she and 12 other girls from area schools had to meet to learn dances for the night of the competition.

The big night finally arrived and, The "Clearview Crowd" took up a section of the auditorium. Kelly was thrilled that so many people from Clearview showed up. "It was such a good feeling to walk down the aisle, or to be on stage and know that over half of the audience was for me! I wish that I could thank everyone personally."

Unfortunately, Kelly didn't win a title, but she didn't walk away empty handed. She won a $75 bond for selling the most tickets and a $150 bond for selling the most ads in the ad book.

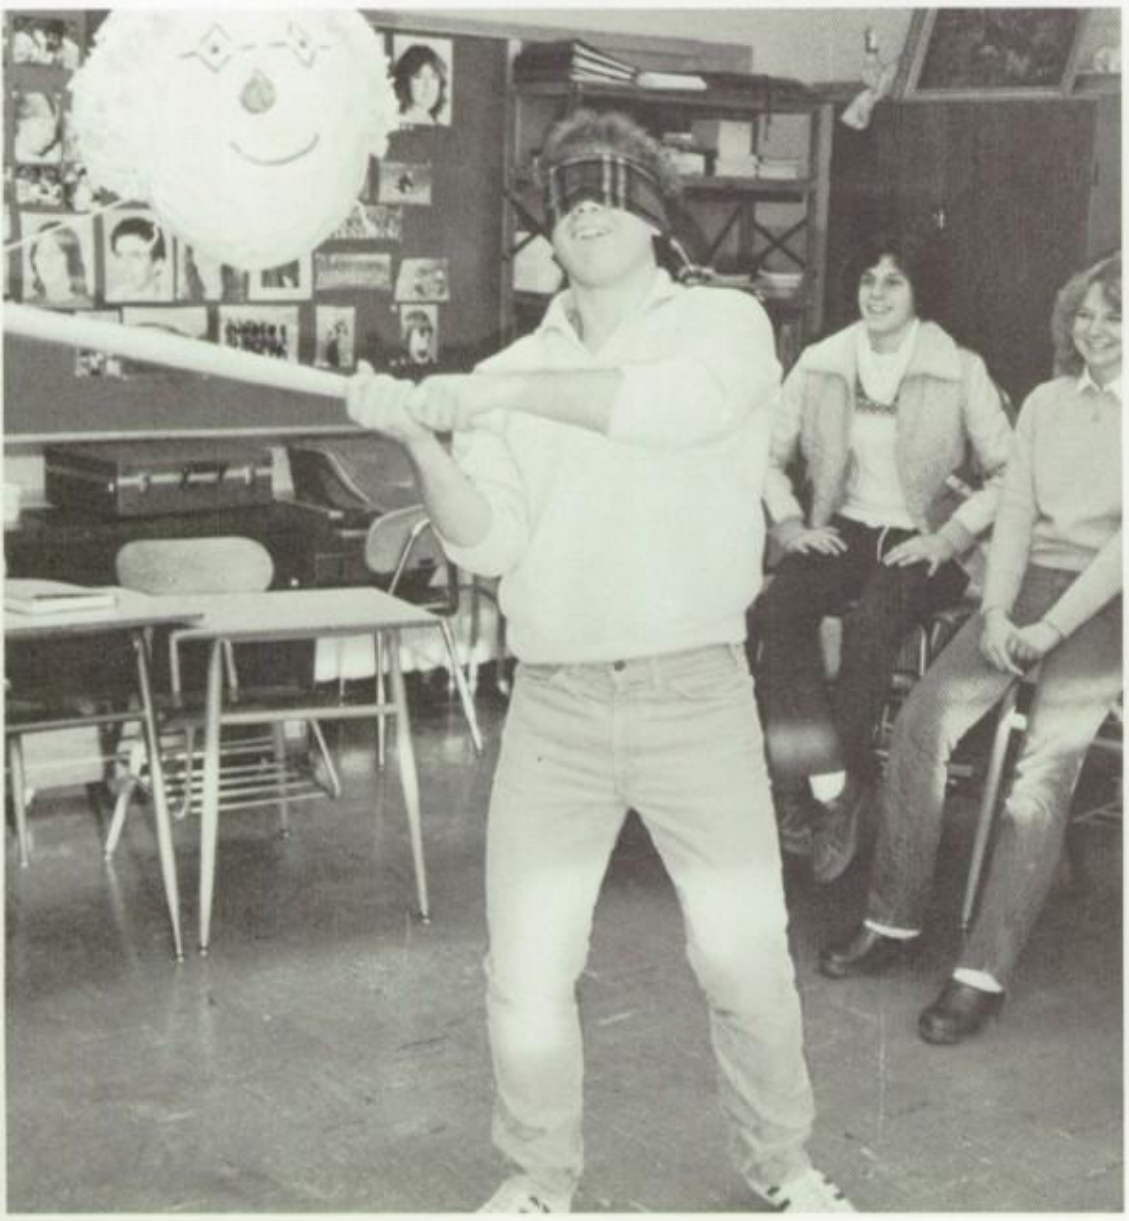
She felt more importantly that winning the support of many students made her a winner.

What's Happening?

1980 may have been a good year for many. However, if you were an employee or regular visitor of the Holly Inn or Telford Inn, the end of the year may not have been as pleasant.

To the shock of many, one crisp, cool day in later November, the once frequently-visited night spot of Pitman burned to the ground. Unfortunately, one fireman was killed while fighting the fire. Oddly enough, about a week later, the popular Telford Inn in Mantua suffered a serious fire. Luckily no one was killed or injured and restoration started soon after the incident.

No one knows the cause of these two mysterious fires — maybe someday they will. But for now, we have lost one landmark and are rebuilding another.



Clearview With An Accent

Each year Spanish students at Clearview are busy with many different and interesting projects. Mike Muse, a Spanish II student, tells it like it is.

"This year has been an exciting one in Señor Donnelly's Spanish II class. Besides having fun in class by trying to learn Spanish, we have created some Spanish specialities. Before Thanksgiving we made some terrfic-tasting sopapillos; they were great! At Christmas we got into the spirit, the way Spanish people do, by singing Christmas carols, breaking a piñata (which was full of candy), eating, and just plain having a good time together. These are just a few of the more exciting things we do along with taking tests, writing compositions and having to speak Spanish."

Umm-Umm-Good

In the middle of December anyone passing through the main hall near the Home Ec. room smelled a delicious aroma and could not resist stopping into room 306 to see what was going on.

It was the Clearview Cookie Company, a project sponsored by Miss Wissee, student-teacher Miss Mason, and their Food Service class. Every morning for eight days they baked dozens and dozens of cookies to sell after school to the students and the staff.

Besides gaining five pounds each, they raised enough money to do some special projects in class and to go on a field trip.

If you didn't get a chance to sample any of the cookies, here is the recipe they used. Go ahead and try a batch. Remember — you only live once, so what's a few extra cookies!

CHOCOLATE CHIP COOKIES

¾ cup firmly packed brown sugar
½ cup sugar
½ cup softened margarine or butter
½ cup shortening
1½ teaspoons vanilla
1 egg
1¾ cup flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
6 oz. (1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate chips
½ cup chopped nuts (optional)
1. Preheat oven to 375°
2. In a large bowl, combine first six ingredients. Blend well.
3. Stir in flour, baking soda, and salt. Blend well.
4. Chop nuts into small pieces.
5. Stir in Choc. Chips and nuts.
6. Drop by rounded teaspoonfuls onto ungreased cookie sheet.
7. Bake at 375° for 8-10 minutes.

Share and Share Alike

During the Christmas season our Student Council shared some ho day spirit by helping others.

Two boxes were placed in the lobby and the cafeteria for the collectio of canned goods. These non-perishable foods were collected every da for nearly two weeks by students and members of the faculty.

The day before Christmas vacation, the food was collected and di tributed to needy families in our area. There was enough food for sever families who otherwise might not have had anything.

We can be proud of ourselves for helping those who can't help then selves.

Something New

Here is a brief rundown of a new course that the 1980-81 seniors Clearview were able to take.

Students have now completed two years of work on Clearview's IB System 34 terminals and printer. The Introduction to Compute Programming course is designed for those pupils planning to pursue career in the Math, Science, or Business fields. Current college student who have used Clearview's facilitie have found that they are well prepare for their college computer courses. Student interest in this area co tinues to grow as do job opportunities in computer programming an data processing.

THE WAY IT WAS 80-81

Let It Snow!

Who listens avidly to WIP in the morning for 802? Clearview students do!

Jim O'Brien becomes a celebrity the moment he says there's a possibility of snow. Students pray for at least five feet and the next morning radios are listened to anxiously waiting for the good or bad news.

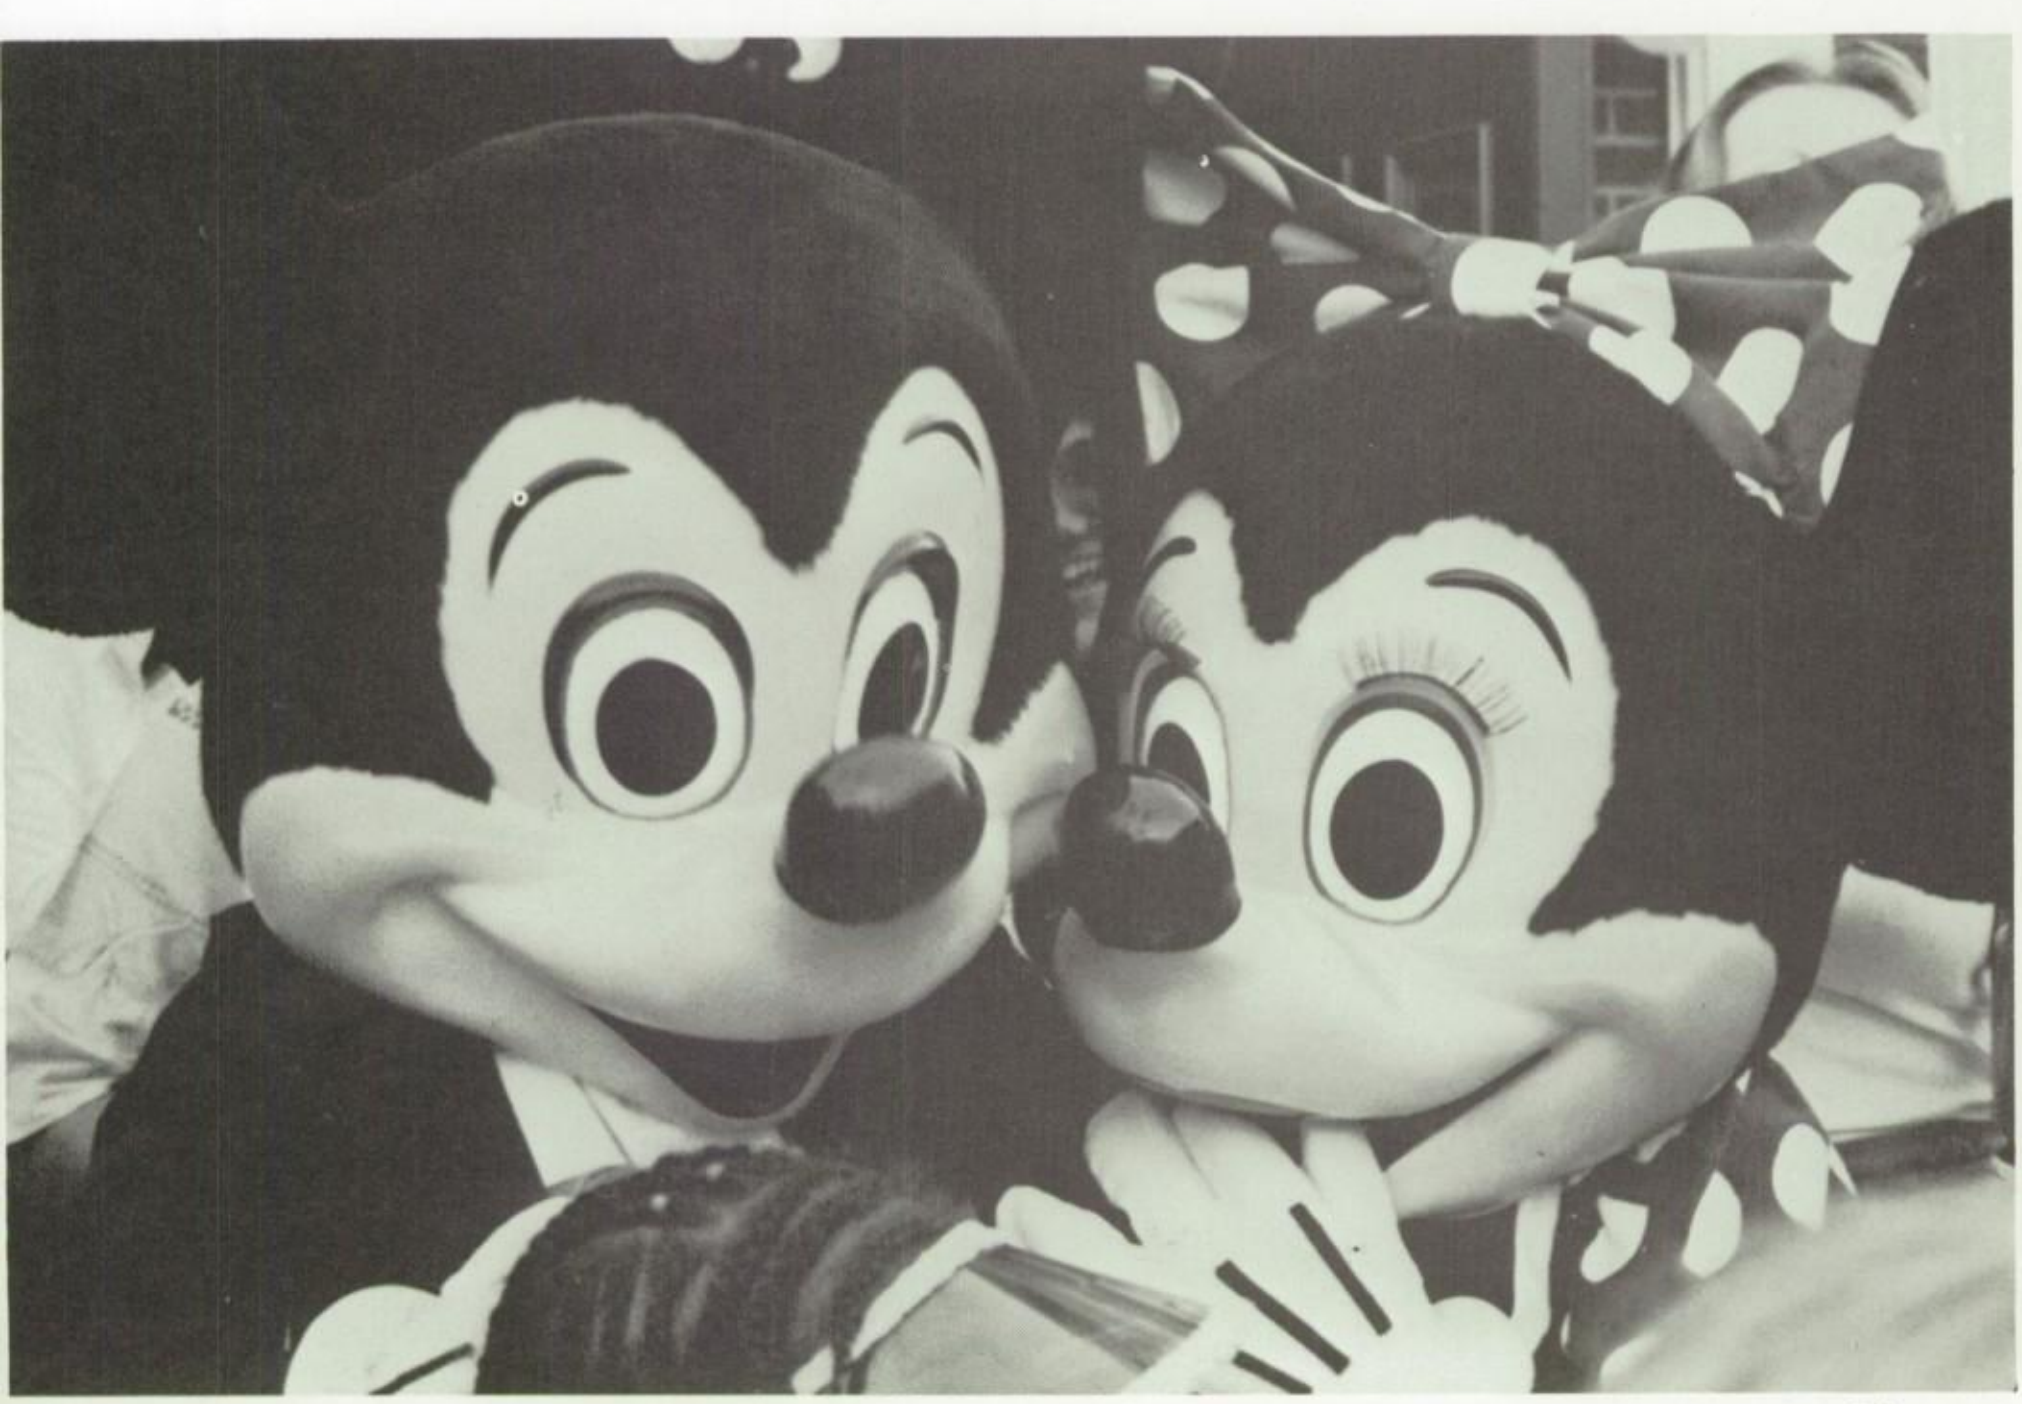
Unfortunately, there was only one snow day this year for Clearview, but it's better than none!

Watch Out Florida — Cause Here We Come!

Suntan lotion, sunglasses, bathing suit, beach hat, etc. O.K., we're ready to take off. But is Florida ready for us?

Each year seniors at Clearview have one main thing on their minds — the senior trip. However, getting there is not so easy. Various sales, starting from the sophomore year, are conducted to help ease the cost. Much planning is done by the class advisors to make the trip something no senior will ever forget.

So start losing those extra inches around the waistline, seniors, cause Florida is right around the corner.



The Latest Style

The Western look is not seen only on the dry prairie trails anymore. It has now become a national fashion classic. TV's top-rated evening serial, DALLAS, has made cowboy boots and ten-gallon hats a style of prestige and stature.

Department stores have been keeping up with the new craze by offering everything from multi-colored cowboy boots to all-leather fringed jeans. Although not many Clearview students have gone to the complete extreme, many have been seen driving their hot rods into the sunset, wearing cowboy boots, Western cut jeans, and ten-gallon hats.

Up, up and away!

Wouldn't it be terrific if gas prices reached this price again? Well, don't bet on it. The only place they're this low is on a picture!

Buses became more popular as Clearview students felt the gas crunch. Gas gauges seemed to point to E constantly and so did wallets once the tanks were filled. Car-pooling helped also, but how many people can you fit inside a Volkswagen?

The average price for a gallon of gas today is $1.35. These prices will probably seem like pennies five years from now.

The only thing to do is use public transportation, car pooling and shortcuts whenever possible.

It's cheaper to ride with a friend!

Take 1!

On December 5 those who auditioned for West Side Story awaited the decision of who had made the play. Finally the list was posted on the showcase and the cast was known.

What was to follow would be weeks of preparation involving hours of working on songs, lines and dances. The ultimate goal is hearing the audience's approval on opening night.

Soar Like An Eagle

What's green and white and would rather die than miss Sunday's game? An Eagle fan, of course!

This year, what didn't come in red and white, came in Eagle green. Everything from shakers and buttons to official team jerseys could be found on Clearview students.

Eagle mania reached its peak on Superbowl Sunday as the Eagles prepared to take on Oakland.

Clearview's district turned into New Orleans II as people gathered into their living room "superdomes" to cheer the Eagles.

Despite a saddening loss, Eagle mania remained strong among students. Well, there's always next year!

Put A Little Punk In Your Life

Punk rock, a new trend, is "whipping it" throughout the country with today's young generation.

Among the favorites are Devo, B-52's, Blondie, Ramones, Pat Benatar, Vapors, and Talking Heads. With leopard shirts and white sneakers, punk seems to be sweeping through clubs with a fad that's unlike the others. Punkers are seen pogoing in places such as Emerald City and other local Clubs.

Look out for some upcoming punk groups such as Quincy, The Brains, The Plastics, The A's, and the Psychodelic Furs. They are the future hits of the punk scene. If you want to be sure that you've seen a real punk, look for the punk symbol — a safety pin!

ROCKY HORROR

This movie is not your ordinary Friday night movie. Unlike a regular movie, the audience participates by dressing up as the characters. There are scenes where the audience throws things to capture key words and also dance to the time warp. A new wave singer, Tim Curry plays the main character Dr. Frank-n-furter in the late-night picture show. The musical film has provided a movie sound track for further enjoyment. This movie allows all types of people to see it — so you don't have to be a PUNK ROCKER in order to get in.

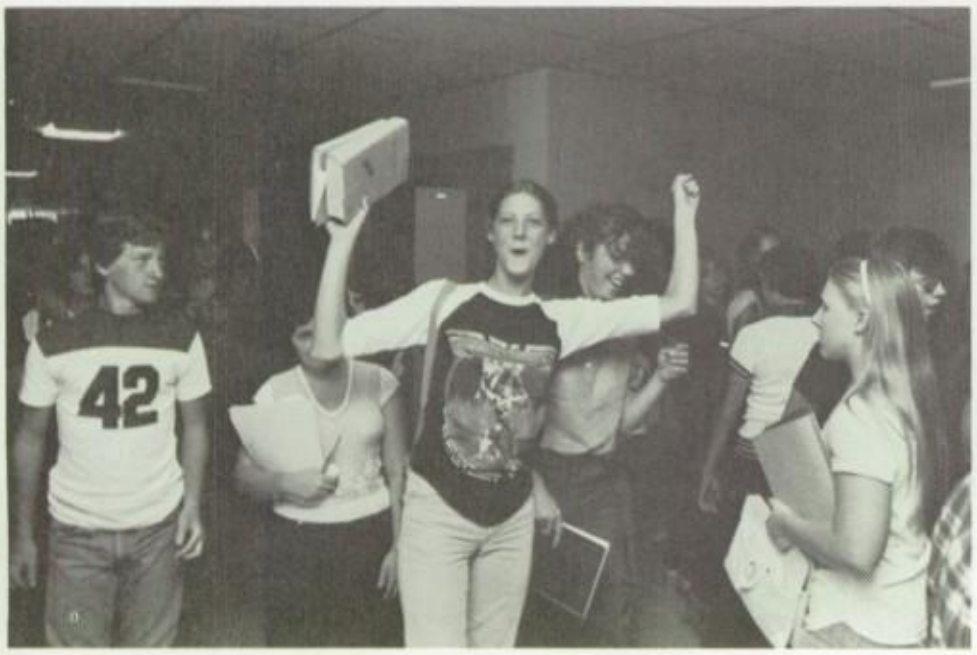
It's A Celebration!

One of the best things about being a Junior falls on a warm, sunny spring day unofficially announced as Junior Cut Day. This is a day when Juniors are supreme and celebrate the day off.

Juniors pack up and head for Strathmere which is the site for their celebration. This is a great time to sit, relax and count the days until school ends.

When September comes again, the Juniors will move up one more rung on the Clearview ladder and become the top of the class — SENIORS! But until that day, Junior Cut Day is the next best thing.



SENIOR FEVER

The symptoms:

Early dismissal for 8:05

Senior absentee sheets that are 3 pages long

A comotose state that begins every Monday and lasts through Friday.

The prognosis: SENIORITIS!!

Senioritis is a catching disease that begins soon after Christmas and lasts the rest of the year. For some, it begins even sooner.

Seniors wander aimlessly through the halls praying for Friday to come as soon as possible. They celebrate in-service days as national holidays and dream of electrical storms and 10 feet of snow! Almost anything can convince a Senior to stay home and it's almost sacreligious to appear in school before 11:30.

Some days are worse than others — especially once the weather gets warmer. Senioritis becomes disastrous as graduation looms closer and Florida becomes a happy memory.

You're only a Senior once — so enjoy!

THE LOST CLASS OF '80

For five years Debbie Landreth's life was bounded by the four walls of a sweaty gymnasium in Colorado Springs. A member of the U. S. Volleyball Team, she practiced six hours a day aiming for a medal in Moscow. When the boycott was announced, Landreth found herself without a goal. "There's an empty feeling," she says. "I guess it's a disappointment that I didn't fulfill my goals." During the Olympics, Landreth will spend her days coaching at a YMCA camp in Arizona.

Like hundreds of other top U.S. athletes, Landreth is trying to adjust to a summer without Moscow. Some are bitter, other resigned; many are simply penciling in new international competitions on their calendars, knowing that time is running out for them. Despite their relative youth, most American athletes considered the 1980 Olympics their only shot at the moon. "I'm 21," says Auburn University swimmer Rowdy Gaines who holds world records in both the 100-meter freestyles. "Most swimmers peak at 21 or 22. In 1984, I'll be too old."

For athletes who qualified at the Olympic trials in Eugene, Oregon, there is always the "Liberty Bell Track and Field Classic," a hastily organized competition scheduled for July 16 and 17 in Philadelphia. The U.S. sponsors of the 33-event meet carefully avoid describing it as an "Alternative Olympics." Rather, says U.S. track-and-field coach Jimmy Garnes, "We're providing a stage for athletes to perform on."

How many will actually perform is still questionable. Invitations have been cabled to the more than 70 countries that will not compete in Moscow, so far only fourteen nations have accepted. Carnes hopes for 90 percent participation by the Americans — including such luminaries as the Olympic-trials pentathlon champion Jodi Anderson, and the winner of the decathlon, Bob Coffman. But Carnes concedes there is a lack of enthusiasm. "The only two events you could get total support for are the Olympics and the trials," he says. This may be true of the audience as well. The event is expected to draw no more than 20,000 to Franklin Field.

Way of life: Many athletes remain in gloomy limbo. Sprinter Evelyn Ashford, 22, who was being hailed as the "world's fastest woman" in anticipation of golds in the 100 and 200-meter dashes and possibly in the 400-meter relay in Moscow, says, "I'll be training during the Games. Training for what, I don't know. But training is a way of life for me. After awhile, I'll probably just have a baby." The only plan Coffman has made is to attend a White House ceremony later this month for the presentation of special gold medals to athletes. "Most of us are going, but grudgingly," says Coffman who is disturbed by the possiblity the occasion will be a media event for President Carter's campaign. "He's used everything else," Coffman reflects with some bitterness.

Some athletes do remain cheery. Cynthia Woodhead, the giggling 15-year old who had a chance to win six gold medals in swimming says, "I mainly feel bad for my family. They're stuck with four Olympic tickets." And there's always the never-say-die Al Oerter, who at 43, had hoped for fifth month in Milan, Pisa, and maybe Prague. In the fall, it will be Taiwan and Chile. What's all the activity about? "I am getting ready for 1984," says Oerter.

DEATH OF A BEATLE

Come together, he had once asked them in a song, and now they came, tens of thousands of them to share their grief and shock at the news. John Lennon, once the cheeky wit and sardonic soul of the Beatles whose music had touched a generation and enchanted the world had been slain on his doorstep by a confused, suicidal young man who had apparently idolized him. Along New York's Central Park, West and West 72nd Street in front of the building where Lennon had lived and died, they stood for hours in tearful vigil looking to each other and his music for comfort. The scence was repeated at Dallas's Lee Park, at San Francisco's Marina Green, on the Boston Common and in countless other gathering places around the country and the world. Young and old, black and white, they lit candles and softly sang his songs. "All you need is love," they chanted in the rain. "Love is all you need."

As the unofficial leader of the Beatles, Lennon has exerted a numerous influence on the popular culture of the 1960's and 1970's. But in recent years he had been something of a recluse, a refugee from the malestrom of pop superstardom who had abandoned the recording studio and public life in an effort to devote himself to his son Sean now 5 years old. He emerged from his self-imposed retreat just five months ago on the eve of his 40th birthday, a man finally at peace with himself, the creative juices once again flowing. He and his wife, Yoko Ono, released their first album in years and were putting the finishing touches on a second. He was, as he titled his most popular new song, "Starting Over." "I'm only 40," he said cheerfully. "God willing there are another 40 years of productivity to go." But as he and Yoko returned home from a late-night session at a recording studio early last week, a 25-year old named Mark David Chapman popped out of the darkness and shot John Lennon. The killing stunned the nation — and much of the world — as nothing had since the political assassinations of the 1960's.

HE KEPT TUGGING AWAY AT THE HEARTSTRINGS

Police dogs were led along the foul lines to guard posts opposite the lower box seats. Helmeted riot-squad cops crouched taut and ready behind the dugouts. Stadium security police roamed the stands in search of incipient stampeders. And in the bullpens beyond the outfield fences, mounted patrolmen readied themselves to ride to the rescue of players and turf. Tug McGraw took in the unfolding spectacle from his vantage point atop the Veterans Stadium mound and said to himself, "This is a helluva show. I better not ruin it."

The forces of law and order in Philadelphia were preparing themselves for the riot that would signal the end of the 1980 World Series. It was a riot that, mostly because of their intimidating presence, never occurred. But McGraw faced real danger. There were two outs in the ninth inning, and his team was leading the Kansas City Royals 4-1, but he had given up a walk and two hits and the bases were now loaded with the potential winning run in the person of Willie Wilson — at bat.

The last pitch of the 1980 Baseball season was a "slightly up"Jameson fastball on the inside part of the plate. Wilson swung at it and missed and 65,838 Philadelphia baseball zealots shattered the pleasant night air with shrieks of joy and relief. The Phillies had won their first World Series after 98 years of trying. The dogs, horses, and cops paced nervously, but the fans stayed out and cheered. McGraw, whose victory dances had become as much a part of the Series as his postgame quips, jumped dutifully up and down, but he was facing third base, not home plate. "I was looking for Schmitty," he explained. "He told me to watch out because he was going to spread himself all over that pileup. I had to be ready for him. If you're not ready, you go down. But this time everyone arrived together. It was beautiful."

ONE LAST GLIMPSE

THE REPUBLICAN LANDSLIDE

Once he was the most underestimated man in American politics — a washed-up movie star, it was said who was too old, too simple and too far right to be President. Ronald Wilson Reagan harnessed a tide of time-for-a-change conservatism and swept Jimmy Carter out of the White House by a landslide of stunning dimension. His counter-revolution shredded the old Democratic victory coalition, overwhelmed Carter by 51 to 41 percent at the polls and 483 to 49 in electoral votes and led a resurgent Republican Party to control the Senate for the first time in a generation. The last voting booths were still open when, at mid-evening on election night, the 39th President conceded to the 40th that his own unhappy hour in history was closed — and that Reagan at 69 was at last an idea whose time had come.

The scale of Reagan's victory was an important measure a repudiation of Carter and his accident-prone Presidency after a single term. He was the first Democrat since Grover Cleveland in 1888 and only the tenth President in all U.S. history to be voted out of the Oval Office. Not even the sudden revival of hope for the American hostages in Iran could save his collapsing candidacy at the very close; his handlers found evidence that the break-through had in fact boomeranged against him — that it had "ripped the scab off the wound," one aide said by reminding the nation that the hostages had been captive for a year and a day. In the end, even the South turned on its first President since the Civil War: every Deep South state but Carter's native Georgia voted against him. It was the last, painful irony that a band played "Happy Days Are Here Again" at his concession. "I promised you four year ago that I would never lie to you," he said taking his leave, "so I can't stand here tonight and say it doesn't hurt."

But Reagan's triumph was very much his own as well — a rousing vote of confidence in him and his politics of nostalgia for that America of limitless plenty and power he grew up in. He is the oldest man ever elected President, three months shy of 70, and by far the most conservative since Herbert Hoover. Reagan won nearly everything that counted in the Northeast, humiliated Carter in the South, swept the rest of the landscape between Minnesota and Hawaii, and left Carter and third liner John B. Anderson with 7 per cent in his dust. "We'll have a majority," glowed the chief of staff Ed Meese pondering the early returns — and with it a mandate nearly as imposing as Lyndon Johnson's in 1964 or Richard Nixon's in 1972."

A DAY TO REMEMBER

It was Day 444 and Day One come together in rare historic symmetry — the end of the long ordeal of the hostages in Iran and the beginning of what Reagan promised could be "an era of national renewal." For more than fourteen months, the imprisonment of 52 men and women half a world from home had stood a galling metaphor for American helplessness and had contributed to the fall of Jimmy Carter's luckless Presidency. But a hostage nation found its own release in a day impossibly full of catch-in-the-throat television tableaus — of the ritual passage of power to a new President; of Citizen Carter standing hatless and hollow-eyed in a drizzle in Plains to announce that the 52 were "prisoners no more"; of the jet door opening at Houari Boumedienne Airport in Algiers and the first hostages descending in blinky disbelief into a dark rain and freedom.

The result was a rush of joy grown rare in the recent life of the Republic — an explosion of unabashed America hurrah patriotism whose heroes included two presidents and whose communicants were most of a nation. At the news from Tehran, the mother of hostage Bruce German ran out into Main Street in Edwardsville, Pennsylvania clanging a cowbell and whooping, "My Bruce is free! My Bruce is free!" She might have been a town crier ringing in an unproclaimed national holiday. Champagne and tears ran free in hostage homes. New York City proposed a ticker-tape parade of welcome. Los Angeles rekindled its Olympic flame. Chicago lossed 10,000 yellow balloons over a downtown plaza. Washington finally lit its national Christmas tree, on Carter's last command as President. Bells pealed, sirens wailed and yellow ribbons fluttered everywhere — one of them, 400 feet long, wrapped around an office tower in downtown Minneapolis.

America's fourteen months of emotional fever and chills over the hostages were not to end so swiftly or so happily. The 52 flew on from Algiers to a U.S. military hospital in Wiesbaden, West Germany for a few days of doctoring and decompression, and free to speak at last, they began recounting what one appalled debriefing officer called a "chronology of horror" in Iranian hands. Stories circulated of physical and mental abuse, of death threats and mock midnight firing squads, of wormy food and lonely months in solitary — of small and large cruelities that left some of the hostages with serious psychological problems. The sigh of relief at how well they looked at first sight gave way to rage against Iran and in some quarters a thirst for revenge. Congress rang with calls to renounce the complex deal trading an $8 billion payout in frozen Iranian assets for the hostages' freedom — a reprisal Reagan was reluctant to impose.

The denouement was in fact too precious to the new President as well as the old; it liberated Reagan from the terrible incubus that the crisis had become and it permitted Carter a last bittersweet taste of victory in the ashes of this defeat. Carter has flogged the complex settlement to resolution in two insomniac nights of long-distance dickering hoping he could race to Wiesbaden and back in time for the Inaugural ceremony, It was not to be. Tehran, having helped in his ruin, piled on a final insult by holding the freedom flight on the ground until just after the rite of succession and so depriving Carter of a bow and a bit of refracted glory. He journeyed to Wiesbaden instead as Reagan's citizen envoy for one strained hour with the 52 strangers whose lives and destinies had become so entangled with his own. Outside, in the night chill, he fell into an embrace with the liberated charge d'affaires, Bruce Laingen; then he spoke angrily of "the acts of baabarism" against them and was gone.

His farewell gift to Reagan was the deliverance of the Presidency and the nation from the tar baby of Iran. The real enemy as the new President proclaimed from his Inaugural platform is "an economic affliction of great proportions" — a systemic illness that broke Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter and now leaves Reagan heir to the challenges they could not meet. His own pledge to hit the ground running bumped quickly into the realities of what presidents cannot do; he filled the air with a flutter of small economics — a freeze on hiring, a downhold on purchases and plane tickets — and pleaded for time to wage the real counter-reformation he has promised. "Progress may be slow," he said, "measured in inches and feet, not miles — but we will progress."
